

PrintClose

RE: Toys in the pool

From: Ed Delahanty (whshed@live.com)
Sent: Wed 8/06/14 1:19 PM
To: Steven E Morrow (stevem@broadstripe.net)

Don't think there's much difference, will check next time there. Never the less, We're close to legal at 220gmp - realistically a bit more than 7 hours for a complete exchange. With our relatively small bather load, not a problem for this year. After reno, will need to be at 6 hours or less.
Ed.

From: stevem@broadstripe.net
To: whshed@live.com
Subject: RE: Toys in the pool
Date: Wed, 6 Aug 2014 11:50:55 -0700

did removal of the crabs do anything to increase our flow figures? could we be legal now????

Steve Morrow

206.718.0887 cellphone

360.678.8765 home

From: Ed Delahanty [mailto:whshed@live.com]
Sent: Wednesday, August 06, 2014 11:32 AM
To: Steven E Morrow; Suzy Palmer
Subject: RE: Toys in the pool

This replay OK with you folks? I'll cc the entire Board after you both bless/edit.
Ed.

Hi Sid,

The plastic toys were in the return line from the skimmers, they were too large to fit in the current skimmer ports so must have been in the system for years. They were found when a plumber was replacing the skimmer shut off valve which was leaking from the handle shaft, thus introducing air into the system. Since the valve replacement there's been little to no air in the system after start up.
At this point I believe Suzy & Steve intend to run for re-election as do I. While filling our terms - either to this October or 2 years hence we will do all we can to improve community spirit at ACBC.

Kind Regards,

Ed.

> From: iversid@cablespeed.com

> Subject: Toys in the pool

> Date: Tue, 5 Aug 2014 16:06:47 -0700

> CC: suzypalmer1@me.com

> To: whshed@live.com

>

> Ed, Suzie,

>

> Russ C. informed the coffee group this morning that a couple of toys had been found in the return pool water line. With all the activity regarding the plumbing I find it mystifying how that might have happened and when. Any story behind this?

>

> Is this just one more bump in the road to get the pool running once again? How big were these toys? Were they found in the equipment room or in the return system? Who found the toys?

>

> I asked earlier about the status of the ByLaws. Looking at such documents as the revised ByLaws and the postcard it appears obvious that the destroy the neighborhood/community cabal is still very much alive and active. Does the Board really believe in the neighborhood community or does it embrace the idea that the pool reigns supreme? What's the plan to bring Admirals Cove back to life?

>

> The spirit of the community seems almost completely missing.

>

> Getting but one non full time resident to seek a position on the Board is a real threat to our existence.

>

> We need help and guidance now!

>

> Who is returning on the Board for next year?

>

> Sid